Television debut

By Carol McCloud, The Bucket Lady

Wowee! — our buckets here at Bucket Fillers, Inc. are overflowing with excitement.

When I was invited to appear on The Balancing Act, a popular, televised morning talk show dedicated to creating trusted solutions for women, I was surprised and delighted.

After working four years with some of the best schools in America, I felt that it was time to give bucket filling the recognition it deserves. I realized that this opportunity would allow me to tell the story of how bucket filling is making a difference around the world.

The Balancing Act has a huge viewing audience in addition to two-million e-newsletter subscribers. What a great way to broadcast the concept of bucket filling and its positive effect on schools, families, and communities.

This lively morning program, hosted by Beth Troutman and Kristy Villa, recently expanded its airtime from thirty to sixty minutes in order to include a new Author's Corner.

Beth and Kristy are proud of their research staff, who look for great things that would benefit from national recognition. When they heard about our book through a number of wonderful teachers, they contacted us.

So, on Monday, August 23, I will appear for five minutes with Kristy in the Author's Corner Back-to-School segment and talk about bucket filling.

Mark your calendars and tune to watch as viewers learn what you already know — filling buckets is fun, effective, and continues to change many lives for the better.

Editor's note: In case you miss the interview, it will be posted on www.bucketfillers101.com and www.thebalancingact.com
