

Respect is Owed to Everyone

Hi Bucket Filler!

You may think you're a terrific bucket filler, but what if you're choosy about the people you treat with respect? What about people who have different ideas, beliefs, values, or practices? Do you look down on them?

Selective dipping is selectively choosing whom you respect.

Selective bucket dipping is a common and divisive practice in classrooms and communities. It's being respectful and kind to some people (usually those who share your ideologies) and being rude and disrespectful to others.

Bucket fillers understand that every person deserves our respect. Regardless of differing lifestyles and opinions, we have a shared humanity. When we limit our love, we limit our life.

Be sure to give everyone respect, not just select individuals, and watch many buckets fill.

Author Carol McCloud

Website | Books | Kid's Stuff | Teaching Tools

